Expansion of Chromosome Dynamics' activity in the industrial products sector, professional cleaning solutions, and development of the B2B / White Label / Private Label platform

Chromosome Dynamics informs investors, business partners, and all interested parties about the initiation of a broad strategic diversification process of the company's activity through the expansion of operations into the industrial and professional products segment, including cleaning, degreasing, maintenance, and technical treatment solutions, as well as the development of a division dedicated to White Label and Private Label manufacturing.

This new strategic direction represents an important step in strengthening the company's business model and aims primarily at reducing dependence on the seasonality specific to the agricultural sector, generating constant recurring revenue streams, and developing new profit lines with broad applicability on both domestic and international markets.

Currently, the company is in the process of developing, testing, and standardizing an extensive portfolio of approximately 320 commercial formulas and recipes covering a wide range of industrial and professional applications. These include industrial degreasers, limescale and rust removal solutions, professional descaling products, solutions for technical installations and circuits, industrial surface maintenance products, HoReCa solutions, products intended for professional laundries, technical solutions for irrigation systems and industrial maintenance, as well as dedicated retail and household product ranges.

At the same time, the company is developing its own infrastructure dedicated to the production and commercialization of products under B2B, White Label, and Private Label systems, targeting companies seeking the rapid launch of their own product ranges without significant investments in research, formulation, industrial infrastructure, or operational authorizations. The platform currently under development will allow partners access to existing formulas, product customization, proprietary branding, packaging configuration, and the development of complete private-label product ranges.

Management estimates that this direction has strong scaling potential, considering the increasing market demand for locally manufactured industrial and professional products, as well as the growing interest in White Label and Private Label solutions from both distributors and companies aiming to develop their own brands with reduced investment requirements and short implementation times.

The commencement of commercial production for the new division is estimated for July 1, 2026, during which period the company aims to finalize technological optimization, recipe standardization, logistics setup, and the integration of the digital B2B ordering and management platform.

This strategic diversification is considered by management to be one of the company's most important development stages in recent years, with the potential to significantly contribute to stabilizing financial flows and increasing revenue predictability. By expanding into segments characterized by permanent demand and continuous commercial cycles throughout the year, the company aims to reduce the impact of the seasonality specific to agriculture and to build a more balanced and resilient operational model.

Furthermore, the new division may generate a positive impact on the company's cash flow through the development of products with constant turnover, competitive commercial margins, and shorter commercial terms compared to traditional agricultural segments. Management estimates that this expansion may gradually contribute to strengthening the company's profitability and creating new medium- and long-term development opportunities.
